SHOT

OF the different numbers, made by

A. F. SAUGRAIN, in Lexington,</

PARIS, June 2.
Address from, Brighton on his inauguration.

Captain Dimeson.
The first Lieutenant that occurred to my mind on receiving the national representation, the right of sitting among you was a conviction of my incapacity.

A difficult task of the history of the French republic, and a man with administration other property, known not to what could I expect to do this exact of kindness and confidence, which called me to the exercise of the first office in the state. But, for forgetting my perspective, I become satisfied of my good fortune. To contribute at the close a glorious reputation, for the consolidation of its happy efforts, to reside at the execution of the laws, to co-operate with you and the legislative body in repairing the mischief necessarily produced by a long and disastrous captivity, is to me a glorious and an enviable duty. Need I mention, that, on entering upon my office, I cherish the sanguine hope of finding in the directory the foundation of general pacification? I did imagine, that after a grand display of power and energy, the French republic would pursue a just and peaceful line of conduct, and manifest a disposition to treat with her most inveterate enemy. The duration of empire is guaranteed by their justice; and justice and moderation, after victory, will be the harbinger of that permanent peace, which ought forever to console and consolidate the constitution which France has acquired. Accept, citizens directors, the assurance of my inevitable attachment to the constitution. Accept those sentiments of respect and esteem which are due to your characters. I derive this most just satisfaction from reflecting that our union, under the guidance of the law, will be cemented by reciprocal esteem, affection, and confidence.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPLY:
The executive directory receives with the most glowing sentiments of joy in their midst, the man whom the confidence of the republic, representatives of the people have elected to participate in their labors. An times of danger and difficulty you succeeded, dear colleague, in making the republic respected abroad, in leading to her strength her old and faithful allies, and in neutralizing the malignity of those who attempted to incite new enemies against her. Your extensive knowledge, and the spirit of moderation which influences your conduct, are the distinguished qualities which with which you will co-operate with us in the accomplishment of our principal object—peace. The foundation of your election is known for guarantee that we shall establish that desirable state on a just basis, and on terms highly honorable. Remote from the focus of conflicting parties, who have so long kept the nation in a state of convulsion you will be an impartial judge, and your efforts, united to ours, for the suppression of faction, will be a favorable omen of its utter extinction. We hope that a review of the conduct of the Directory, and observing the unanimity that prevails among the members, that you will return them for their duty, and will join with them in the sentiments they retain for the talents, the probity, and civil virtues of their old colleague Lefebvre, which we so confidently during the eleven months that he remained in the eminent position which you are about to fill.

The same was announced to the public by the discharge of artillery.

SUCCESSION, June 11.
The delegates of the fleets finding themselves defeated by so many of their companions, dejected or being able to effect their purpose, and according to the best information that I can collect, they are now willing to return to their duty, provided his majesty's pardon is extended to them, in connection with their delinquent brethren. An intimation to this effect was yesterday made to Admiral Duckworth, and, as a proof of the sincerity of their wishes, they have struck for a time the red ensign of defiance, and hoisted the union flag in its place, permitting at the same time several mechanisms detained by them to depart up the Thames. This amicable display was, however, of very short duration—for on being informed that it was the intention of government that the ringleaders should legally answer for their crimes, the emblem of defiance was again hoisted, and there are at this moment 24 or 25 red flags flying at the Nore. In the mean time, Admiral Duckworth has sent to the admiralty for instructions with respect to the future conduct to be observed towards the mutineers. Capt. Night, of the Montague, who has, on 1st June, been the bearer of the admiral's letters, and the answer of the admiralty which will decide the fate of the delegates. Lieutenants Ryder and Miller, of the Calliope and Calliope, also for several days for London to give some necessary information to the lords of the admiralty respecting the present condition of the fleet. The ships which escaped yesterday are now under the protection of the batteries. The ramparts facing the Nore is fully manned; the red hot balls continue in a state of preparation.

BOSTON, August 7.
By Captain Smith from St. Peterburgh, arrived since our last, we learn, that while lying at Elsinore captain S. died with an English captain directly from London who informed him, that coming out of the Thames, he was stopped, by the militia on foot, and had his provisions taken from him; that he put into Havre for a supply; while he lay there, the fleet got under way, and called him a mutineer; this was about the fourteenth of June.

Nothing is said in the Quaker paper of the other discoveries, implicating a number of the principal characters in the fleet of Vernon; it is, of course, presumed that the publication on that subject is premature.

NEW-YORK, August 7.
Last evening arrived the ship Marquise, captain Bebe, from Havre de Grace, which he left on the 15th June. Capt. B. says he saw a letter the day before he sailed, dated Paris June 13, in the evening, which mentioned the arrival that day of Lord St. Helens, as ambassador from the court of London, to treat on a peace. Our London papers do not mention the sailing out of an ambassador, though there has been time enough since the reception of the passport, to render this very possible. The above letter was received by Mr. Escher, the merchant who translated Mr. Bebe's dispatch. A London paper of June 13, has this important article:

"It is said that the Directory has replied to the dispatches sent from the cabinet of St. James's that they would consent to resume negotiations; but that in order to prevent difficulties similar to those which had led to the miscarriage of Lord Malmesbury's mission, some preliminaries must be agreed to by the court of London, they would concur in accelerating a peace on just and honorable conditions for both nations."
It is said that Parker, the ringleader of the mutineers, has secured the Pythias of war, and manned her with his own creatures, in order to ensure his escape. He attempted to remove the crew of the Flound with this view, but they refused to quit their ship.

Capt. Bebe, on the 18th inst. boarded the ship Active, bound to Philadelphia, from Belfast, which he left June 15, when the affairs of Ireland were still in an unsettled state.

PHILADELPHIA, August 8.
Late last evening we were favored with a postscript to the New-York Minerva, dated Sunday morning, announcing the arrival at that port of the Paris. Communications, from which the following summary was extracted in haste.

Admiral Curtis called the Goodwin Sands, with 5 ships of the line, on his way to join Admiral Dimeson, who is cruising off the Texel. The Dutch fleet is not yet out—Capt. Willis, of the Lancaster, arrived at the admiralty with overtures from his crew, for pardon. Capt. Knight, of the Montague, who had been in London on his parole, returned with the new acts of Parliament, the acts declaring the ships in state of rebellion, and determination of government to coerce obedience—in which the crews of the frigates manifested a disposition to return to their duty.—The Scorpion, a store ship, of 24 guns, and a Boop of war, returning to duty, attempted to escape, were fired on by the mutineers and much shattered.

June 9 and 10.
No prospect of submission among the ships. The propositions made by the delegates to the admiralty, were not granted by the admiralty, and no alternative remained but force. Two ships, the Leopard of 30 guns, and Republic, of 64 guns, returning to obedience, cut their cables and drifted off to escape from the mutineers.—They were fired on by the Monmouth and Monarch, for an hour, and received some damage.—They got off.

The Arcton made her escape. The red flag was taken down on board the mutineers, and the vessels which had been detained by the mutineers were permitted to sail—and they proceeded to London. Afterwards the red flag was again hoisted. The Neptune, admiral's ship, of 98 guns, and the Agincourt of 64, dropped down the river.—The delegates having learned that their companions had deserted them, intimated a wish to submit on condition of pardon, struck the red flag, and hoisted the union flag, but finding government refused to punish the leaders, again hoisted the flag of defiance. It was flying on board 16 ships.

This is the latest accounts in the paper of the fact. Some broad sides were exchanged between the Monmouth and Arcton, as the latter attempted to escape, by which the former had 10 men killed—the first lieutenant of the Republic also a leg.

The Minerva Postscript further mentions, that Kufislo was to sail from Bristol on the 20th June, in the Adriana, for this port.

That the challenger sent to the Directory to ask a passport for an English peace envoy, returned with information, that the French were willing to treat.

That Bartholomew, the new director, arrived at Paris on the 5th June.

That the king, in council, had offered 500 guineas for Parker, president of the mutineers.

August 6.
The prospect held out by the last accounts from England, is, that the disturbances on board the Nore fleet will be suppressed. Government has been able to break their ranks, and that is half the battle. If government should persevere in measures of severity, and the revolvers should hear of the movements on board admiral King'smill's squadron it is not improbable, however, they may fail out and join them.

The strength the revolvers in the Nore have lost, according to the late accounts, is not very considerable, consisting of the Scorpion, Republic, Leopard and Arcton, and a Boop of war not named; but what is important is, that the defection will be difficult and jealously among the crews, who, it is natural to suppose, have each fallen to return under submission, for fear of punishment, from being the last to hold out.

Extract of a letter from the editor's correspondent at New-York, dated yesterday.

"Dear Sir,
I have just time to inform you, that a gentleman in town has received letters by one of the late arrivals, which mention that in consequence of intelligence from Paris, great importance is attached, that all the differences subsisting between the United States and France will soon be amicably adjusted, as matters were in a train, and considerable forwardness for effecting so desirable an event.—No names are mentioned—but was thought that a communication had been commenced between the minister of foreign relations and general Pinckney."

"Another letter of the date posterior to the above, mentions the same and adds that orders were actually given in France, to cease pirating against American vessels, that those which had already been brought in should be released, and rest upon foot for such as had been condemned and sold."

"And another letter from Bristol by the Paris, says that reports are in circulation, and generally credited, that a treaty of settlement of the differences between the red force will be placed, so that within a very short time, it will be believed that American commerce would be freed from all interruption."

"These things are truly deplorable, and we trust they will be remedied."

A letter from a gentleman in New-York to his friend in this city, informs, that it appears by letters from London dated the fifteenth June, that although a passport had arrived some days before, no preliminary had been appointed at that date, the French having demanded some preliminaries to be agreed upon previous to their entering into a negotiation for peace.

The same letter adds, that Kufislo, with several other Polish gentlemen, were to sail from Bristol for Philadelphia on the 25th June, in the ship Adrian.

August 10.
At the dinner given at Paris, by the remaining deputies, to the new treaty, and those who went out by rotation, there were 200 covers laid in the famous hall of the new republic hotel, which is called Odeon in imitation of the Greeks. At dinner, Kieffer, Jourdan, Meunier, colonel, Rouget de Lisle, the Turpins, of the French armies, and many other officers, and men of learning dined at the festival.

The emotions which the toast, "the deliverer of Italy," excited in the breast of a very beautiful young lady were so strikingly expressive, that the attention of the whole company was at the same moment attracted upon her. The report that she was not only a native of Milan, but the daughter of the philanthropic Brevint, spread like lightning through the hall, and all the guests (including negroes, and colored witnesses of the French republicans, which she accepted with so much gracefulness as a model.

Republican principles are accepted in the decisions of Turkey, and the Pacha of Widwan has published a manifesto, declaring himself independent of the Porte as the Pacha of Suway had done before.

The emperor of Russia has published an edict, fixing the line of succession to the throne in the male descendants of his family, and in default of males, in the female issue of the last monarch.

The senate of Hamburg have openly recognized the French republic, and the French wear the national cockade in that city.

ANECDOTE.

The following anecdote will explain the given to General Gates, on Burgoyne's Neck.

As soon after the capture of General
Burgoyne at Saratoga, he was in company with general Gates, his aged captain. In consequence of the free circulation of the bottle, the prisoner forgot his captivity, and gave way to his wit. The conversation turning on the plains of Saratoga, the British general reproached Gates for undertaking the command of an army at a period of life, when declining years advised him to undertake office of midwife rather than a general. "A midwife!" exclaimed the veteran,
"You know from experience, that in discharging the duties of a general I did not forget the office of a midwife;
for in one day, I delivered you safely of 7000 soldiers, with whom you had been long in labor."

George, a negro man belonging to widow Macpherson, (late the

RICHARD CAYE.

August 24 1797.

One hundred 1 'lars reward.
STOLEN OUT OF MY SHOP.
THREE WATCHES, & two GOLD
RINGS.

ONE of which is a small French gold Watch, which I mistook about the 20th of last September. I am informed the maker's name (which was on the face, and perhaps on the inside also) was L'Epine, a Paris—there was a piece broke out of the face by winding with two large keys; if any carver on the case, it was only a little and the rim and joint; when I then it looked dell by lying some time out of use, wanted cleaning and a glass,
had a small yellow chain with flat links and a small flat gully key. The silver watches were both mistook since the middle of this month: one of which was of the new kind of two watches with gold hands, made by James Miller, London, No 236, if I remember right. The other is what is called a Holland watch, but I think it was made by John Alden, Liverpool, No.
1033; as well as I recollect, the cock over the balance-wheel was silver, in which was a garnet stone for the wheel to turn on; the half yellow hands,
and the outside case shut like a box
without any spring. One of the Rings was of a common kind, with middle fired square white stone. The other was an old mourning Ring, which weighed about half a guinea, lettered with "Frances Neffin, obit (date forgot) 1843," but scarcely legible.
Whoever apprehends and delivers
to me the thief or thieves, and the articles above mentioned, shall be entitled to the above reward, or twenty dollars for each watch and one dollar
for each ring.
